Eat Smart North Carolina: Guidelines for Healthy Foods and Beverages at Meetings, Gatherings, and Events

Eating is one of life's greatest pleasures. There are many foods from which to choose, and many ways to build a healthy lifestyle. This leaves a lot of room for choice. The Dietary Guidelines for Americans<sup>1</sup> were designed to help people enjoy a variety of foods while ensuring good health. These Guidelines encourage eating a variety of foods and balancing food with physical activity. Having healthy foods and drinks available at events makes sense and supports good health.

Imagine a North Carolina where:

- children and adults can choose from a variety of tasty foods and drinks at community events, schools, civic, professional and religious centers. This includes fruits, vegetables and lower-fat, lower-calorie options. Water is always available to drink.
- caterers, restaurant owners, and other food and drink companies provide healthy foods and drinks in healthy amounts for customers.
- employees can buy healthy snacks in vending machines at work and can choose healthy foods in meetings and classes.
- foods and beverages are served in smaller portions.
- healthy foods are offered at potlucks, meetings, health fairs, religious functions and other community events.

Eat Smart, Move More...North Carolina is a statewide movement that encourages people to eat healthy and be physically active wherever they live, learn, earn, play and pray. We need your help to create a North Carolina where people view Eating Smart and Moving More as a normal part of everyday living! Think healthy eating is boring? Doesn't taste good? Costs more? Think again! Try colorful fruits and vegetables, tasty whole grain breads, and pastas seasoned with delicious herbs and spices. You can eat and serve these tasty foods without blowing your budget. "Eating Smart" does not mean every single food you eat (or serve) has to be low in fat or high in fiber. It does mean balancing less-healthy foods and drinks with healthier ones. It also means serving helpings that support good nutrition without too many calories.

EAT SMART NORTH CAROLINA: Guidelines for Healthy Foods and Beverages at Meetings, Gatherings, and Events is a tool for anyone who is in charge of food-related events. Making simple changes to foods and drinks you offer at group and community events gives North Carolinians disease-fighting foods and the energy boost they may need without worries about too many calories or too much unhealthy fat.

Why Should We Be Worried?

Our food choices, lifestyle and surroundings all affect our health. We know that choosing the right foods can prevent diseases and help us live better lives. Most North Carolinian's diets are low in fruits, vegetables and whole grains, and are high in fat, saturated fat and sugars. Eating a steady diet of unhealthy foods and drinks is associated with four of the 10 leading causes of death: heart disease, some types of cancer, stroke and type II diabetes. Health problems related to poor nutrition and physical inactivity cost North Carolinians about $24.1 billion each year in medical care costs, lost productivity and workers' compensation.<sup>2</sup>

The N.C. Division of Public Health developed the following guidelines because the link between diet and health is so strong. Health experts are also seeing growing numbers of people at an unhealthy weight in our state. The guidelines will help meeting planners choose lower-fat, lower-calorie foods and drinks for events. As users of this guide, we can model our commitment to good health by making our meetings and events healthier, and sharing that vision with others across our state. Most importantly, by following these guidelines, you can improve your own health and the quality of your life. You may also reduce your risk for long-term diseases such as heart disease, cancer and diabetes. So think about all of the food-related events you are involved in (meetings, trainings, church suppers, fundraisers, luncheons, receptions, etc.) and promote good health by using some of the suggestions listed in this guide.

FIVE GUIDELINES

GUIDELINE 1

Offer healthy food choices at breakfasts, lunches, dinners, potlucks and receptions.

There are many healthy and tasty options for foods and beverages. Fruits and vegetables are low in calories and high in vitamins, minerals and fiber. Portion sizes are important, too. Portion sizes have grown over the years. Larger helpings of high-calorie, high-fat foods contribute to overweight in adults and children. Offer smaller portions of foods and beverages. Offer lower-calorie beverages—water, low-fat milk, and unsweetened teas. Offer baked, roasted or grilled meats and fish, served with vegetables prepared without added fat.

GUIDELINE 2

Offer only healthy foods at mid-morning or mid-afternoon meeting breaks.

Food is everywhere we go, all day, every day. Mid-morning and mid-afternoon meeting breaks often involve eating food. With many of us struggling to control our weight in our food-filled surroundings, it's good to think twice about whether or not it's necessary to offer food at meetings, presentations and seminars, especially mid-morning and mid-afternoon. Help create a norm that food does not have to be everywhere. Food does not have to be the way we get people to attend. If you do provide food, offer only fruits, vegetables and/or other healthy foods. Or, offer a physical activity break instead. Turn on some music and get people to dance or move around.

GUIDELINE 3

Identify and promote healthier food and beverage providers.

Healthy food and beverage options for meetings, gatherings and events can be purchased in many places: restaurants, grocery stores, farmer's markets, caterers, food distributors, just to name a few. Once you have identified the businesses that are willing to provide high quality, healthier foods at a reasonable price, compile and share that information with others in your community. For example, if you have worked with a caterer who has been willing to alter their menu offerings or adjust their recipes to decrease fat or increase fruit options, share that caterers name with others. By promoting these businesses with friends and colleagues, it not only helps the business grow, but it sends a message into the community that healthy foods and beverages are a priority. In turn, this may mean that vendors begin to carry more items and be able to provide them at a lower cost. It's a win-win situation.

GUIDELINE 4

Keep food safe to eat.

Foods that are safe from harmful bacteria and viruses are vital for healthy eating. From farm to table, everyone shares the responsibility of keeping food as safe as possible by washing hands and surfaces often; separating raw, cooked, and ready-to-eat foods while shopping, preparing, and storing; cooking and chilling foods to a safe temperature; and serving foods safely. Your local health department or cooperative extension agency can provide you with more suggestions.

GUIDELINE 5

Lead by example.

When group leaders role-model healthy eating and physical activity, it makes a powerful statement. Show your members or employees that you are concerned about their health and well-being. Sign a formal or informal Eat Smart North Carolina Healthy Foods policy (see page 11.) Share this document with other leaders in your community. Challenge them to lead by example too. Buy healthy foods when you dine out. Prepare and eat healthy meals at home. Do not forget to build physical activity into your events as well. Encourage physical activity in your organization and “walk the talk” yourself. Visit the Eat Smart Move More...North Carolina Web site for other ways to promote healthy eating and physical activity wherever you live, learn, earn, play and pray: <http://www.EatSmartMoveMoreNC.com>.
